***** N the 17th of this Instant September, will O be Publish'd at my Shop,

*****

A Dedication to Lord FLAME,
Author of HURLOTHRUMBO;

Wherein you will have an Account of Fifteen different Sorts of Diversions: And a Hogthead of Punch will be given gratis to each Day's Sport; the like of which were never yet performed in Europe.

The Diversions to begin October the Sixth, and end
the Eleventh, which is the KING's Coronation Day.

And in the said Treatise you will find Proposals to support them Annually, at so easy a Rate that the meanest Fortune cannot be injured.

NB. If

NB. If my Proposals should have Success, without giving me a great deal of Trouble, there shall be Hogsheds of Liquor planted in different Parts of the City for the Populace, and all the Town Engines shall be play'd with Wine, that the Birds of the Air may get drunk for Joy; to make BATH a true Representation of the Grand Carnival or Jubilee of ROME. Once more, I say, If my Proposals are liked by the Gentry and Towns-People, BATH, for the Years to come, shall be as much Superior to what it has been for the Years that are past, as the dazzling Day is to the gloomy Night; The Thoughts of coming to It, shall be half the Cure of the Sick: And I am sure that unparallel'd Vertue in the Waters will not fail in the other. As here is a constant Resort of the Grandest Families, and a Sett of the Noblest Company in all the whole World; since they have fix'd upon this Spot, to meet together once a Year, there ought to be every thing of Whim and Humour, for their Entertainment. But instead of such Provisions for a general Good, here has been nothing minded but getting great Sums of Money, keeping a flashy Equipage, and providing with their own Money a little superannuated, insipid Diversions, such as Dancing, Fiddling, and Puppet-shows, &c. Diversions more fit for Women and Children than for Men of Sense, Bravery, Activity, Spirit, and Skill; but but when here is every thing, as certainly ought, every body must be pleased : And that here shall be, if I am ever so little countenanced in my Proposals, which must be granted on all Hands to be of a General Good ; if not, I humbly hope that none will be offended if I should think fit to drop all such Proceedings : Tho' I don't tell you absolutely I will drop it ; in all likelihood I may travel on as I have done before : But that Power I shall reserve to myself a little longer, till I see how lucky the Season is like to prove ; if I declare off, you may all guess the Reason ; it will not be for want of Courage.

Note, Several miserly rich Pimps have been endeavouring to persuade and dis-spirit me from spending my Money in a Publick Manner, for a general Good, which has been sufficiently discovered : How all Liberal Dispositions have been corrupted and spoiled, in suffering themselves to be over-persuaded by villainous Designs, to engross from young Gentlemen of Estates all the superfluous Money, that should circulate for a Publick Good ! And this Vice is generally acted under the Rose, which makes the deeper Impression : but by my being a Publick Man, I have discover'd something more than another can ; beware of all Colours that are dyed with a B ; if any Man endeavours to dis-spirit me from any Undertaking for the future, I shall certain'y kick him :

him: And I will now advance to any body Ten Guineas for a Hundred, or a Hundred for a Thousand, to be paid when I have the Management of the Subscription Money at the Pump-House, and Mrs. Lyndsey's Long Room: (For I have spent as many Hundred Pounds on his Majesty's Publick Days as any body, to inform myself how to manage in the genteelest Manner, and at the easiest Expence; thro' which Industry I brought a great Interest to the Town; and he that is most deserving, next to him in Possession, ought to have it): Then BATH shall be shewn in Perfection; for I can go on Foot, and the Money that keeps a Sett of Horses, with a Grand Equipage, shall Roast a great many Oxen every Year, for a General Good.

October the 6th, will be Publish'd from my Shop Four different Sorts of Books, at One Shilling, and One Shilling and Six-pence each: Which Books will make every body easy; for in one I have accounted for the Necessity of every Proceeding; with many other diverting Subjects, agreeable to the Humours of BATH.
